Mayor Healy and City Council to Hold Ground Breaking Ceremony at McGovern Park Public-Private Sponsorship Provides Families with Renovated Playground

JERSEY CITY – Mayor Jerramiah T. Healy and Ward A Councilman Michael Sottolano will break ground with members of the community and representatives from the Honeywell Corporation on the new playground at McGovern Park at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 27, 2007, at the corner of Briarwood Road and Sycamore Road.

The renovations to Victoria Anne Horvath Playground are part of the Jersey City’s Recreation Master Plan, and will include new landscaping, structural repairs, two new decorative gates, a user-activated spray fountain and new graffiti-resistant play structures. Honeywell, through its Hometown Solutions initiative, is sponsoring the improvements.

“We are excited about this new playground and the state-of-the art features it will offer the children in this neighborhood,” Mayor Healy said. “I am pleased that Honeywell is investing in Jersey City and our children. Their commitment to our community shows they truly do want to make a difference.”
